Nominations Open for 2011 Military Child of the Year Award

Operation Homefront announces the expansion of the 2011 Military Child of the Year Award and opening of the nomination period. Beginning in 2011, the award will be given to an outstanding military child from each Service – Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard. The winners, who each will receive $5,000, will be flown with a parent or guardian to Washington, D.C., for special recognition ceremony on April 7, 2011. Nominations are being accepted until January 31. Click here to nominate a child.

OPERATION HOMEFRONT

Ideal candidates for the Military Child of the Year Award demonstrate resilience and strength of character, and thrive in the face of the challenges of military life. They demonstrate leadership within their families and within their communities.

"The sons and daughters of America's service members learn what patriotism is at a very young age," said Jim Knotts, chief executive officer, Operation Homefront. "Children in military families understand sacrifice and live with the concept of service. This is what the Military Child of the Year Award honors." Nominees must:

- Must have valid military ID or currently be enrolled in DEERS
- Must be between the ages of 8-18
- Must be able to travel to Washington, D.C., for the ceremony on April 7, 2011
- Finalists must have a background check to confirm legitimacy of information provided in the nomination and must provide references.

About Operation Homefront

Operation Homefront provides emergency financial and other assistance to the families of our service members and wounded warriors. A national non-profit, Operation Homefront leads more than 4,500 volunteers across 23 chapters and has met more than 267,000 needs since 2002. A four-star rated charity by watchdog Charity Navigator, nationally, $95 of total revenue donated to Operation Homefront goes to programs. For more information about Operation Homefront, please visit www.OperationHomefront.net

Post Deployment Health Survey and Education Website

Walter Reed Army Medical Center and the Uniformed Services University (USUHS) constructed a website, www.postdeploymenthealth.com, which is designed to provide Families of U.S. military veterans who have served in OIF/OEF with information and advice about the effects of deployment on service members and their Families.

They hope that by providing information about the signs and symptoms of combat-related mental health problems, such as post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) and depression, military Family members will be better able to recognize these conditions in their own veterans, and will be better prepared to seek professional help.

They are reaching out to Family Readiness Groups on military installations across the country to ask for support and assistance in gathering participants for their study. If interested in participating in the study visit their website at www.postdeploymenthealth.com. This study is sponsored by the DoD.

Scholarship for Military Daughters

For the third year in a row, The Julie Foudy Leadership Foundation will continue to honor and support families who are serving our country by offering full scholarships to military daughters interested in attending the Julie Foudy Sports Leadership Academy. These scholarships have been generously funded by TriWest Healthcare specifically for military families. Applications for 2011 will be available the first week of January at the Foundation's website, www.foudyleadershipfoundation.org.

The application is a PDF file, which will need to be downloaded, printed, completed, and then mailed to the address provided.

Interested applicants with questions about the Foundation and/or the Julie Foudy Sports Leadership Academy before the first of the year can contact Kerri McClellan at kerri@foudyleadershipfoundation.org or at (949)338-5544.

Debt Commission 101

Military families may be confused and concerned by recent news reports regarding recommendations for changes in military pay, benefits, and programs made by something called the "Debt Commission." In February 2010, President Obama created the bipartisan National Commission on Fiscal Responsibility and Reform to address our nation's fiscal challenges. This Debt Commission is supposed to propose recommendations that meaningfully improve the country's long-run fiscal outlook, including changes to address the growth of entitlement spending and the gap between the projected revenues and expenditures of the Federal Government. It is important to remember that the Commission serves as an advisory board to the President. Neither the President nor the Congress is required to act on its recommendations. The Commission must vote on a final report containing a set of recommendations to achieve its mission no later than December 1, 2010. The final report will require the approval of at least 14 of the Commission's 18 members.

Commission Co-Chairs, Former Republican Senator Alan Simpson from Wyoming and President Clinton's Chief of Staff Erskine Bowles, floated a draft report that sparked all the media attention. This report contained the recommendations of the co-chairs only; the full commission has not yet approved these recommendations. Several recommendations did address potential savings from changing certain military benefits and programs. Many of these recommendations are not new. For example, the consolidation of the commissary and exchange systems and the elimination of Department of Defense Domestic Dependent Elementary and Secondary Schools (DDESS) system have been proposed often in similar reports, only to be scrapped when lawmakers realized it could cost more to cut the programs than to keep the status quo.

The National Military Family Association will continue to monitor the Debt Commission process and educate Members of Congress on the need for policies, programs, and services that adapt to the changing needs of service members, retirees, veterans, and their families and survivors. They will review the final commission report when released to determine the effects of the recommendations on military families and ensure policymakers are aware of the implications. To view the full report, go to www.fiscalcommission.gov/sites/fiscalcommission.gov/files/documents/Illustrative_List_11.10.2010.pdf.

4 Easy Strategies to Ease Holiday Stress

It comes as no surprise that many people, and parents in particular, find the holidays to be stressful. The amount of holiday events to go to and presents to get can often seem overwhelming. Here are four ideas to help you make the most of the holidays with your family.

1. Set a Schedule. Determine ahead of time what your family's schedule is and set limits on how many parties and engagements you can attend. For the holiday shopping, develop a budget that includes all gifts, decorations, food, etc. and stick to it.

2. Evaluate your Gift Giving. You may want to evaluate how many gifts your family is buying and just what you are buying your children. Instead of cleaning out the store, pick several key gifts. This will help your kids to recognize the more important parts of the season.

3. Get Creative. Consider helping your children make holiday ornaments and cookies as gifts. Give the gift of your time or any services you might be able to offer. Your family's favorite cookies or your offer to take care of an elderly family member's lawn could make a very meaningful, yet affordable, gift.

4. Make a Memory. Your kids love spending time with you - they may not need all the fanfare and expense to find the magic in the season. Driving around to look at Christmas lights, watching your favorite holiday TV special, or reading a holiday bedtime story are all easy ways you can make the season special.
